Dear Myla,

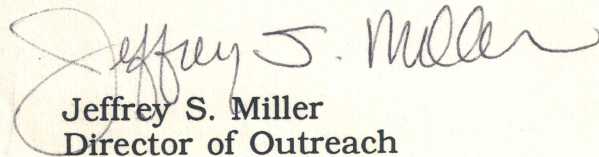

Thank you for the update on your work.

I enjoyed the radio production of Felix and Fanny (I've been a Michael York fan for years) and found An Irish Sonata intriguing with its haunting sensibilities and use of music.

At this point, however, neither is a good fit for our company. Two-handers are unlikely choices for the "ensemble-based" aesthetic our artistic director likes to trumpet and we just did a play which had a heavy Irish focus.

Thank you, nevertheless, for thinking of Lamb's Players Theatre. And we wish you the best with both new pieces.

Sincerely,

Jeffrey S. Miller
Director of Outreach
