I just finished reading it. I'm in overwhelm at its power. At its soul wrenching truths. My heart has been forever scarred at what's happening at our border. The children, the babies being ripped from their parents' embrace. Wetback is haunting in the sheer majesty of the people who live within its universe. Never had I been more ashamed at my country, never have I been so opened, so intimately connected with a play. Your excruciatingly exact representation of the complexity of injustice is transcendent. Truly, for me, Wetback is the most personal of all your work. Devastatingly brilliant.

Much love;
